Turismo:

LA ALJAFERIA:

An Arab palace in the heart of Zaragoza.

It was built as a place of recreation and also served as a defensive building.

It is an 11th-century Arab castle palace. Remains of its fortified area are still preserved. It is a palace of quadrangular plan with rounded towers except for one of them, known as the Troubadour's Tower, which has a rectangular plan. The rooms are arranged around the courtyard, which is open to the sky. Its roofs, coffered ceilings and plasterwork decoration are some of its greatest charms. It is currently the headquarters of the Aragonese Parliament.

BASILICA DEL PILAR:

The Basílica del Pilar is the symbol of the city par excellence. Tradition holds that the Virgin Mary came to Zaragoza to the Apostle Saint James (Santiago), who was preaching on the banks of the Ebro, to console him. The Virgin gave him a jasper column as a symbol of the strength that he should demonstrate in his faith. Inside you will find an image of the Virgin resting on a Pillar (Pilar), the jasper column she is said to have given to the Apostle. The alabaster High Altarpiece still boasts some of its polychrome tiles, a spectacular example of Late Renaissance architecture, the work Damian Forment. Goya also left his mark on the temple, particularly on the dome, the setting for his fresco "Queen of Martyrs". A vast basilica of intense emotional resonance for local residents.

SALVADOR'S CATHEDRAL (LA SEO):

It has been a Roman temple, Visigoth church, Mosque and finally a Cathedral, and thus showcases a range of contrasting artistic styles: Romanesque, Mudéjar, Renaissance, Gothic and Baroque. Also known as La Seo, particularly remarkable features include the Mudéjar wall of the parish, the Baroque tower and the Neoclassical façade. The main altarpiece, dedicated to El Salvador, is rendered in alabaster. The Chapter House houses the Tapestry Museum, an interesting tapestry collection spanning the 15th to the 18th centuries.

ZARAGOZA'S 2008 INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION:

This is a new urban espace created for this International Exhibition. Zaragoza's River Aquarium is here and our Convention will mostly be enjoyed here.

Water Tower

Bridge Pavilion

Stone Bridge: It's the oldest bridge over the Ebro River. The one we can see now was built at the beginning of the XVth Century and is located at the same spot as was the old roman bridge.
